

Evening Public Ledger

and
THE EVENING TELEGRAPH

Philadelphia, Saturday, July 6, 1918

THE WAR HAS OPENED OTHER AVENUES TO WOMEN, WHO ARE QUICK TO GRASP NEW OPPORTUNITIES

SCHOOL DAYS OVER, farm days began for Miss Dorothy Mackenzie, a Drexel Institute student, who is engaged for the summer as a "hand" on a Merion estate.

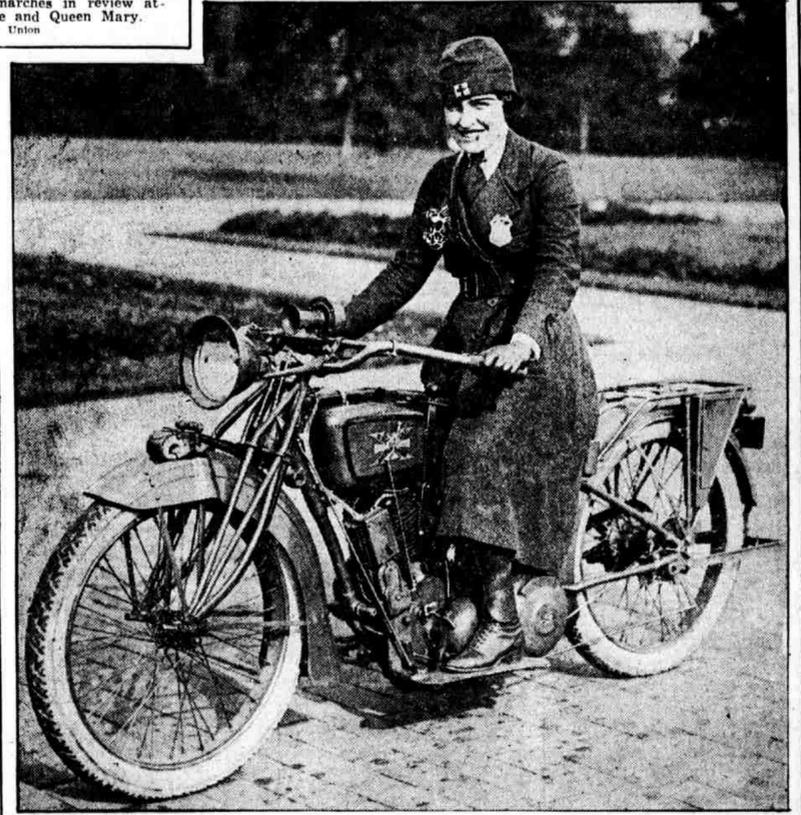

FRESH FROM THE BATTLEFRONT in France, a contingent of Tommy Waacs marches in review at Aldershot before King George and Queen Mary. Western Newspaper Union

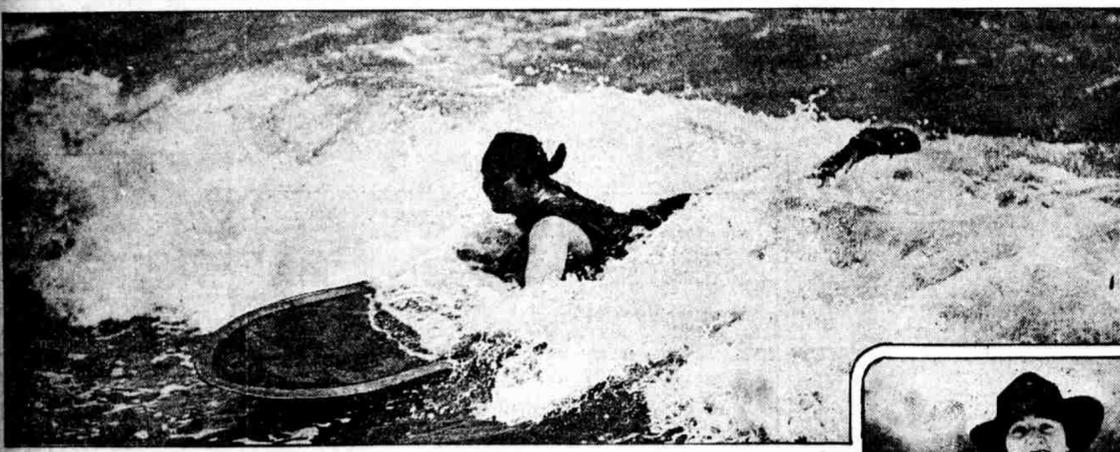

AMONG OTHER THINGS, the navy's yeowomen are good oarsmen, or should it be oarswomen? At least, such is the case with the quintet above, winners of the Fourth of July race on the Charles River at Boston. Underwood & Underwood

THE MOVEMENT started by Miss Beatrice Kendall Eaton, of Philadelphia, for the block song service is spreading rapidly under her zealous and enthusiastic leadership. Miss Eaton is shown in costume above. International Film Service

HURRY CALLS FOR AID are speedily responded to by Lieutenant Alice Gaffney, of the Jersey City Red Cross Motor Service, who has been sworn in by the police commissioner of that city so that she may answer emergency calls without interference. International Film Service

THE SURF BOARD is a never-ending source of delight for the fair bathers at Atlantic City and the other seashore resorts. International Film Service

LAST, BUT NOT LEAST, among the many occupations undertaken by British women is that of riveting conveyor chains. International Film Service

WITH AMPLE PROOF of her ability as a farmerette, Miss Beatrice De Lacey, from the Seabrook Farm, near Bridgeton, attended the July Fourth festival at the South Jersey town. International Film Service

DILIGENT WORKERS for the Red Cross are these youngsters, who realized the sum of $35 from a fete in the square at Twenty-fourth and Wharton streets. International Film Service